Town Council Arranges For Annual Meeting

Appointed Mr. Frank Baird as Returning Officer

The last meeting of the present town council was held last Monday evening with Mayor Worts and councillors Smith, Shaw, Lavelle and Sangster present.

The mayor reported that the Committee appointed at the last meeting had drafted a letter to the utilities commission drawing attention to the town's financial position and asking for advice regarding payment of bonds presently falling due.

In answer to this a letter was read from the commission advising council to take the matter up with the auditors who instructions to have auditors submit a report and recommendations as to whether it is necessary to provide for the transfer of any funds from the provincial treasury to the town. The commission's letter also reminded council that if the council drew on town funds now in the hands of the treasurer they would have to secure additional funds for emergencies by way of the collection of taxes.

A letter was read from the school board asking for $80 for school purposes. The request was granted.

Several applications for relief were made. Among them was one from a single man but as he had not registered in compliance with instructions, his request was refused.

The secretary was instructed to make the necessary arrangements for securing Cliff Hall for the ratepayers' meeting to be held on Friday evening Jan. 27th, and also to secure 100 printed copies of the financial statement.

The bylaw appointing Mr. Frank Baird returning officer for the municipal election to be held on Monday Feb. 19th was given its several readings and passed.

Constable Kitchen reported that several water and rent delinquents had been making an effort to pay up back accounts, but some were not. He was instructed to have water shut off when no attempt was made to settle or no attention paid to warning.

Mayor Worts took occasion to thank the three councillors whose term expires this month for the interest they had taken in the town's affairs during their term of office and expressed the hope that they would stand again as their experience would be valuable asset to the council.

Re-organize Senior Hockey Club Here

Prepare Program of Events for Balance of Season

At a meeting of hockey enthusiasts held at Shorty's place last Monday evening the local hockey club was reorganized. All present were most enthusiastic over prospects for the balance of the season and plans were made for a program of events to be held at intervals in the future.

The following officers were elected: President—L.R. Stone; Sec. Treas.—J. Lovens, Ex. Com.—G. Oakland, W. J. Mathony, C. Barry, and A. M. McFadden. Captain—W. W. B. McLeary, Trainer—J. Podesta, Manager—W. Campau and G. H. Worts.

JUST FOR FUN

For the next few months it is the intention of the skiver to publish a series of Limericks just for the boys and girls. We would suggest that the young people cut these out from week to week and paste them in a scrap book. Forty years from now they will make entertainment for future friends, to say nothing of the fun that may be gotten from them at the present time. Here's the first one:

From The Country
Said a foolish young lady of Wales,

"A small of scaped gas pressure."

Then she searched with a light,
And later that night,
Was collected—in seventeen pails.

Alberta treasury department announces there are $8,685,000 in provincial savings certificates. Financial statements issued by banks in Canada last month showed that in all over two billion dollars are in savings accounts in the Dominion. The chances are that the majority of those who own these savings are men and women who have been having steady work employment all through the depression but have caught the saving fever, and have heard so much about hard times that they and their families are doing without things which ordinarily they would have purchased under normal conditions when everything was higher in price. Just think of it, if those hoarders would carry on as usual and spend only one-tenth of their savings for things they really need, they would put over two hundred million dollars in circulation over night, thus giving employment to some of their less fortunate neighbors.

It's all right to lay by a little for a rainy day but why anticipate a flood?
Bert Mellon, who farms north of Stettin, met with a nasty accident last Monday, as a result of which he had his leg broken. While riding on the prairie his horse stumbled and fell on him. He was taken to the hospital where the break was set. The patient is now recovering. The patient is a brother of Mrs. A. E. Shaw and Mrs. E. Martin.

Redcliff Loses First First Hockey Game

Played Here Last Sunday
Against Safeway's Midgets

Redcliff hockey fans were treated to a game here last Sunday afternoon when the Safeway's Midgets of Medicine Hat, came up for a friendly game.

Although the visitors far outclassed the local side and appeared to be able to score when they felt like it, the spectators were glad of the opportunity of seeing the town team in action. From the start the locals were more or less at sea and it was plain to see they had had very little practice. Needless to say the visitors won out by a good substantial margin.

The game showed that we have some good material from which to pick a team. With practice and training our boys will make a better showing next time.

The Visitors played a tidy snappy game all through.

The crowd which turned out to the hockey game here last Sunday should be some encouragement to both local players and officers. It showed them that their game will be patronized and enjoyed by the public. But there is one thing that must be kept in mind. That is that attracting customers to a hockey game is much the same as attracting customers to a store. If the goods add to the store are not up to the mark the store loses a customer. It is the same with hockey. While the game last Sunday showed we have some good material for a team it also showed that what they need most is lots of practice to get next to each other's play and to develop some team work. There is liable to be considerably more hockey weather this season. Why not get down to business?

Grasshopper Outbreak Expected Next Spring

Southern Part of Province is Likely Infested

Possibilities of an outbreak of grasshoppers in Alberta next spring and summer are reported by the provincial department of agriculture, and the government is making preparations accordingly. A considerable area in the southern part of the province is likely to be infested. Large numbers of eggs have been found in the ground. In order to cope with the expected outbreak of the hopper plague, the government has contracted for sufficient supplies of poison stuff to be stored in Calgary for distribution as needed.

Redcliff Reminiscences

Taken From Our File of
Jan. 23-1912

Redcliff Burns' Club held its second annual banquet and concert in the Redcliff Hotel on Thurs. the 25th.

The following citizens took part in the program of entertainment: C. T. Hall, P. Lavelle, H. J. Vinson, J. Dugwald, D. McLachlan, E. H. Belmont, W. S. McLean, Dr. R. R. Stoner, H. A. Ireland, R. McCarty, A. J. Learmonth, W. J. Lappin, H. J. Sampson, J. Berry, W. H. Hargrave, R. Hamilton, R. S. Hodges, J. Broadfoot, R. Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Wedderburn, of Alberta, gave a grand ball on Delnick's hall last Wednesday, in honor of the wedding of their daughter, Ethel, to Mr. J. O. Scottie. A number of Redcliff young people got up a splendid party and attended the dance. They left Redcliff at 7:30 p.m. and arrived at Bow at 9:30 p.m. The music for the evening was furnished by Wm. Reid, Wm. Bowcott, Mr. and Mrs. Cook, of Redcliff, and Mrs. Mansfield, of Bow.

Davidson & Will, barristers, have opened a branch office in Redcliff, over Ireland's store, and will be in on Wednesdays of each week.

McLachlan & McLean are running the carpenter work on the four houses now under roof and the brick work has commenced on six others.

Miss Cayenne Timmons returned this week from a two weeks' visit to the States.

Mrs. (Rev.) C. J. Wilson, of Medicine Hat and Mrs. J. W. Kaake, of Delisle, Sask., were the guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Henderson on Saturday last.

At last we are to have street lights. The council has ordered three dozen globes and 500 mantles, and appointed a caretaker.

Messrs. A. Learmonth and D. Phillips have been successful in securing work at the Anselmines. They started their new duties on Wednesday morning.

AIN'T IT THE TRUTH?

The following pithy paragraph was plucked from Pety's Periscope, appearing in the Medicine Hat News of Monday last:

"Isn't it funny that so many business men will get up in a morning, refresh themselves with a dose of advertised salts, clean their teeth with an advertised tooth brush and advertised tooth paste, shave with an advertised razor, wash and shave with advertised soap, put on advertised underwear, advertised hose, garters, shirts collars and shoes, treat themselves at the table and eat advertised breakfast food and bread, drink advertised tea, coffee or cocoa, put on an advertised hat and gloves, light an advertised cigarette with an advertised match, drive to business in an advertised motor car, give letters to a typist who types on an advertised machine, using advertised paper and carbon, turn their letters with an advertised pen containing advertised ink—and turn down a proposal to advertise, on the ground the advertising doesn't pay?"

—G. A. Gray.

BADMINTON NEWS

Badminton is still going strong. Enthusiasm runs high. Some splendid games are being played off in the tournament.

In the men's singles—Ballantyne won from Hargrave and Jensen from MacKenzie. Nov. Thomson, Ballantyne Simpson and Jensen are ready to play off the semi-finals.

The ladies reaching the semi-finals were Misses Emma Frey, Cox, Ethel, and McWain, and Miss Sellhorn played their game on Tuesday. This was a very closely contested game. Miss McWain winning out by one point.

The local club has been challenged to a tournament, by the Memorial Church club, of Medicine Hat. The challenge will be accepted and the same played off in the near future.

When purchasing articles advertised in this paper, just mention that you saw it in the Review. It won't hurt you, and it might help us.

Wednesday, Feb. 1st, the ladies of St. Ambrose Auxiliaries will be hostesses to a pleasant afternoon of bridge and whist. Good prizes, a nice tea, all for $5. Everybody welcome; Feb. 1st hall, Wednesday, Feb. 1st at 3 p.m.

The concert which was to have been given by St. John's choir from Medicine Hat, last Wednesday, will be given in Gordon Memorial church on Monday, Jan. 30. It will be a real treat for all lovers of good music.

Mrs. Percy Rand and son left Monday night for Summerland. Mr. C. M. Rand has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. McLachlan, for the past few weeks.

Big Doings at The Skating Rink On February 3rd

Good Program of Fun Promised
For The Occasion

From all accounts there will be a real lively and amusing time at the skating rink here on Friday evening Feb. 3rd.

Arrangements are now well under way for a good evening's program on that occasion. It will start off with a masquerade for which good prizes will be given for all kinds of comic and Character costumes for both young and old male and female. This will be followed by a burlesque hockey game between old heroes of the book and headed by G. H. Worts and Shorty Mathony.

Then there will be skating races for all classes between one inch and half-a-mile tall. A Spanish bull fight, with a full cast of Toreadors, Matadors and Bulls will be put on. All kinds of novelties will also be introduced during the evening.

Don't miss this event. Turn out and encourage those who are trying to make the rink a success.

Tickets are now on sale. Every ticket purchased gives the holder a chance of winning a ham, a bag of flour or $100 worth of bread free.

Tickets for the Legion Burns' banquet tomorrow night are selling rapidly. Don't miss it.

The annual ratepayers' meeting will be held in the Cliff hall on Friday evening of this week.

Mrs. T. Balmer has been quite ill for the past week with an attack of quany.

Mrs. A. N. Collard and Mrs. A. R. Ballantyne have been on the sick list for the past week.

Mrs. J. R. Patterson, of Medicine Hat, was a visitor in town on Monday, the guest of Mrs. R. C. Hargrave.

The Review world appreciates it very much if those having any items of news that would be of interest to our readers, would let us know about them.

Vega Rebekah Lodge will hold a Valentine dance in the I. O. O. F. hall on the evening of Tuesday, Feb. 14th. Bridge and whist will start at 8 o'clock for which there will be good prizes. Admission 25c.

SCHOOL NOTES

The Students' Union held its regular meeting on Wed., Jan. 18th, when routine business occupied the time. Committees were elected from the different literature classes for choosing plays to be put on by these classes at a dramatic festival to be held soon in the school. The following were chosen:

1st.—Phyllis Sheldon, June Mallard and Elsie Blades.
2nd.—Richard Ross, Albert Podesta and Sarah Davies.
3rd.—William Lanning, Beth Pallas and Helen Ross.

A NEW SPORT IN THE MAKING

Many New Lines Of Inquiry Have Brought To Light Curious Facts About The Honey Bee

Among the many new lines of inquiry which are now being followed at Redbank, the oldest and best agricultural station in the world, is the life of the bee; and some very curious facts have been, not frostily discovered, at any rate tested and illustrated. . . . The bees in every hive enjoy progressive employment. They begin as housemaids, they are promoted to nursemaids and conclude as housekeepers, or at any rate as caterers. The system works very smoothly up to a point, so long as the promiscuous flow at decent intervals, all goes smoothly; the hive is at peace within itself and social service has no lot or hindrance. Trouble makes its appearance only when the upper ranks are filled and promoted. In such a case, the bees become general. Revolt is threatened. Its rumors reach the senses of the queen. Perhaps she notices that rival queens are being bred, it may be in numbers. So she decides to make the best of things, and seek a new kingdom. She collects a few bees, leaves the hive, swarms and takes her company to the new home that special pioneers have already been sent out to discover. . . .

The early career is singularly uniform. First they hang about the comb from which they emerged, and spend their time in rather a half and dandily manner—in cleaning out the cells and making them fit for further use. As their food and capacity increase and the instinct for flight in the open air develops, they advance to the work of feeding the queen. As a rule they devote themselves chiefly to the care of the older grubs when first taking up the new duties, not attending to the younger till later in their career. As the year advances each working bee becomes a Matron; she devotes herself to the care of honey, to the care of the cells and the collection of the nectar. . . .

Now suppose the hive is not big enough to hold more comb, more honey, or suppose the weather is so unfavorable as to interfere with the storing; the system more or less breaks down. Promoted as I have said, is blocked. An old Scottish philosopher used to say that reason is developed along the line of conflicting instincts. Bees do not presumably arrive at reason, but when the instinct for progressive work is checked they are driven to a new activity. It is at such crises in the life of the hive that the large cells are built and grubs specifically fed for the creation of queens. It is in fact of this new fact that the old queen—not one of the younger products—nurses new mandatory desires and leaves the company with a like aim. Is it now established that she has taken with her rather more of the younger than the older bees, though her aim is fairly representative, and the new swarm is believed to approximate the original swarm in the hands of William Beech Thomas, in the London Spectator.

A Savage Practice

Civilized People Have Not Yet Learned To Be Quiet

In his description of the "Deserted Village," Goldsmith refers to the "loud laugh that spoke the vacant mind." When the poet penned that line there were no motor-car cutting acute corners about the town, sending the air with piercing, nerve-racking sounds when forced to tarry a few seconds at some busy intersection. Such a concert of discord is said by the psychologists to be a sign of weak mentality.

Making a noise seems to be a savage practice, and with all our civilization we have not advanced greatly as far as (tactless) is concerned. We have not learned the art of keeping still. We must be producing a clamor at all events. Perhaps the time will come when we shall grow tired of our noise and look upon it as an offence to public decency. Until then we who are wise must be patient and hope that the wisdom of the noisy may increase.

The Last Act

"Why don't you attend church?" asked the minister of a non-attendant. "Well, I'll tell you my first time I went to church they poured water in my face, the second time they tied me to a woman I've had to keep ever since."

"Yes," said the parson, "and the next time you go they'll throw dirt on you."

Authors Select Some Of Greatest Novels

George Bernard Shaw Names Dozen That He Fancies

"It's an unmanageable question," declared Bernard Shaw when asked by the magazine, "The Book Window," to name the 12 greatest novels. Nevertheless, Mr. Shaw names the following dozen: "Don Quixote," "Robinson Crusoe," "Tom Jones," "The Vicar of Wakefield," "Macon Lescaut," "Ivanhoe" and "Rob Roy," "Little Dorrit," "Candide," "Gulliver's Travels," "Pilgrim's Progress," "Les Misérables," "The Arabian Nights." "There you have a baker's dozen," declares Mr. Shaw. "You will easily get another 12 just as eligible."

Several novels of note beg to be counted the lack of naming the best 12. "It is like asking which is the greater work of nature, the shrewmouse or the elephant, the cedar tree or the violet," says H. G. Wells. A. S. M. Hutchinson confines himself to naming a single book "Tom Jones." So does G. K. Chesterton, who plumps for "The Canterbury Tales." Ian Hay starts with "Don Quixote," "Les Misérables," "Vanity Fair," and "War and Peace," and then goes on with something of a jump to "Treasure Island," and "Huckleberry Finn." In his list are also included "Pickwick," "The Shipper's Woe," "The Good Companions," and "Middlingmood."

Here we see C. H. Lowe Wylie, prominent English aviator, with the tiny engine he has designed to test the possibilities of light-aeroplane racing around pylons in the manner of dirt track contests. This engine is a two-cylinder, air-cooled, motor-cycle engine of 500 c.c. capacity or approximately 6 horse-power, normal rating. The machine weighs about 400 pounds. Mr. Lowe Wylie, one of the Mother Country's most famous glider pioneers, tried out his "plane and it worked perfectly, so, all being well, we shall have aeroplane racing around the sport arena of the world very soon, which may put automobile and foot racing out of commission for lack of thrills.

Leases In Bond Street

Queer Things Would Happen If Freeholder Exercised Right

A writer in the London Morning Post tells this one—I met a man to-day who has just been negotiating for the acquisition of some property in Bond Street. He told me that when he examined the draft lease he discovered to his astonishment that one of the clauses provided that he should give an undertaking to allow the freeholders of Westminster to drive through the property and have the property "without let or hindrance." Similar clauses, I understand, are to be found in the leases of many of the properties in the neighborhood. It would be interesting to see what would happen if one of the freeholders of Westminster decided to exercise his right. The spectacle of some elderly peer attempting to drive a flock of rebellious sheep through the front door of a Bond Street beauty parlor could scarcely fail to be a diverting one.

The fact that the subject of the "kill or cure" experiment still lives gives scientists hope for their success. In fact, Dr. Fritz Lange, who developed the apparatus used for splitting atoms, which made the experiment possible.

All In Knowing How

Many People Fall Victim To Great Distances Without Sustaining Injury

What is it that causes one person to suffer severe injury in a short fall and another to escape in dropping comparatively greater distances? Perhaps it's all in knowing how to fall. In football games clever players have certain way of hitting the ground when tackled that prevents them from being hurt. Actors possess the same faculty, when struck down on the stage. One reads of people falling several stories from hotel windows and escaping with minor injuries, while broken limbs or fractured heads are not infrequently caused by falls not greater than a man's height. Little tots and babies often get away without being hurt. George Dawkins, aged 17 months, fell from a second story window at his home, Ighite, N.Y., landing on his back, without an injury of any description. Such is the way of the world and the unjust alibi, that doesn't always apply to the extent of injuries received by persons who fall out of windows.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Causes For Low Prices For Grain Are Reviewed By Prominent Western Grain Expert

Contrary to general belief, the wheat exporting countries of the world, Canada, United States, Argentina, Australia, Russia, the Balkan States, India, etc., have not grown more wheat this last crop season than the world normally requires to purchase. Said Major H. J. J. Strang, director of the research department of the Beale Grain Company.

"The price of wheat," continued Major Strang, "has seriously declined. Why? The simple reason is that the main importing countries, Great Britain, France, Germany, Belgium, Italy, etc., have enjoyed a larger yield per acre than they have recorded in their wheat crop history. This extra yield per acre has amounted to the enormous quantity of 165,000,000 bushels more than they would have produced, had they had only an average crop. This means that they will require to buy considerably less wheat from the exporting countries."

"Last importing year, these and other importing countries purchased 70,000,000 bushels of wheat. The extra large crop they have produced this year means they will purchase probably less than 70,000,000 bushels. The year before last, the 70,000,000 and the 165,000,000 extra bushels they have produced, will either be fed to stock, used for extra consumption of the domestic population, in the displacement of rye and barley, or put into storage, as larger reserves for the future. This is the simple and outstanding reason for the decline of prices this last year. Unsettling of war debt payments unquestionably have been a factor, too, but probably only a minor degree, compared to the large European wheat crop."

"The bright ray for the export and grocer in the situation is that this particular surplus this year is not the result of increased acreage, but only because of fortunate climatic conditions. It would be an extraordinary coincidence and quite unprecedented if anything like the same high yield per acre should occur again next year."

"Canada," continued Major Strang, "is making enormous sales of wheat this year. Last crop exporting year between August 1 and December 3, 1931, Canada sent approximately 20 per cent of the world export wheat sales during that time. This year, during the same period Canada has sent approximately 60 per cent of the world's export wheat sales, or more wheat than all the rest of the exporting countries put together, and than twice as much to Canada as the sold last year during the same period. It would not appear from this as though the state of inflation or otherwise of any country's currency has anything to do with at least the amount of wheat that is being sold."

"There does not seem to be any reason to suppose that the low price chasing power of European importing countries has lessened to any appreciable degree the amount of wheat they have purchased. The reason probably is that wheat and bread is the cheapest food, and that low purchasing power has curtailed their consumption of more expensive foods, butter, eggs, bacon, meat, etc."

"Indeed, figures recently compiled and published by our research department," said Major Strang, "indicate that during this time of depression the world is certainly not consuming any less cereal food per capita than it did during the boom times of prosperity. China, for instance, as an illustration, is consuming more wheat and rice per capita, for its 450,000,000 people than Canada is consuming wheat per capita for its 10,000,000."

"There is much talk of reduction of prices, so as to eat up the 500,000,000 bushels of wheat surplus in the world that is depressing the wheat market. From my own study, I am of the opinion that if it may be worth, that the farmers in Australia, Argentina and the United States can make a better, and with less loss to themselves, change from wheat production to the production of animals and animal products, than the Canadian wheat grower, for the simple reason that in the United States they have an enormous home market for these home products, and the European purchasing power slightly increases, there will be a substantially increased demand for Argentine beef, Australian mutton and lamb and Australian wool, products with which the Canadian farmer, particularly our wheat grower, has no direct trade. It almost impossible to find a market for the surplus. Our real business seems to be the producing of wheat, which we can do better and of higher quality than any other country in the world."

"Therefore I see no reason why we should reduce prices for wheat. Canada, and time will certainly bring back a price for wheat that will be better than the cost of production."

Fewer Cars Are Used

Many Canadians Put Old Cars Away During Hard Times

Canadian operated 1,651,336 motor vehicles in the first nine months of this year, one for each 10 persons, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported recently. This was a decrease of 7.8 per cent. from last year. Gasoline sales dropped 10 per cent. in the same period.

Motor vehicle figures for Manitoba and Alberta are unavailable for the nine-month period in 1931 and the total for last year was used. New Brunswick had no figures for 1932 or 1931.

The following is the number of motor vehicles in use in the provinces with the decrease from last year in brackets: Prince Edward Island, 4,979 (10.2 per cent.); Nova Scotia, 39,737 (8.6 per cent.); Quebec, 162,917 (7 per cent.); Ontario, 237,760 (4.4 per cent.); Manitoba, 64,800 (13.2 per cent.); Saskatchewan, 88,205 (15.6 per cent.); Alberta, 82,033 (11.6 per cent.); and British Columbia, 85,429 (6.9 per cent.).

Poultry Mathematics

Average Cost Of Egg Production Per Hen Figured Out

Under normal conditions it takes 57.5 eggs to pay for the cost of feed for a pullet during the pullet year, figures supplied by the Dominion Experimental Station at Lancaster, Quebec, show. As this figure is arrived at from an average of twelve years' results it is of more than ordinary interest. The number of eggs required to pay the cost of feed per bird varies, of course, with prevailing market prices from year to year. During the period of the report it has ranged from as low as 50 eggs, which was a part of the 1928, to 60 eggs, which was a part of the 1931. It is also interesting to note that the same cost study shows that an average of 15 eggs is sufficient to pay the cost of feed per bird during the winter months only.

What Insects Eat

Some Are Parasitoids and Others Will Eat Anything

Grasshoppers are vegetarians, but otherwise almost anything that is vegetable; walking-sticks and crickets are omnivorous, eating anything that is not crockery; that weird insect, the praying mantis, is an insect-eater, but will eat any insect—except its own mate. The solitary wasp, that provides for their young by leaving a sting-stung victim in the cell with each egg, are also specialists in assassination, though here as well as elsewhere, some will eat anything and spiders, others provision their nurseries only with smooth caterpillars. One species limits herself to queen ants. But there are plenty of wasps that will stab and drag home a wide variety of insects for larva-food.—London Times.

In Self Defense

Tenant—"I simply won't stay any longer. Those people above me banged on my door all night long, slammed doors, and jumped up and down as hard as they could. I won't stand it, I tell you!" Landlady—"They woke you up, I suppose?"

Tenant—"No, I hadn't gone to bed yet. I was practicing on my neighbors."

GIVE US THE NEWS

Occasionally the Review is asked why a report of so-and-so given by such-and-such a local organization did not appear in the paper. In most cases the answer is very easy, and that is "we don't know a thing about it." The Review is always very glad to get news of local happenings but as we do not belong to all the local organizations we have to depend on those who should be most interested in them, to give us particulars. It is said that the success of any organization depends largely on the secretary. We would therefore, appreciate it very much if the secretaries of all local organizations would keep us posted on what their respective organizations are doing that is things of a news value and we will be glad to publish them.

In most places—and it was the case in Redcliff at one time—such organizations sent invitations and press tickets to the local paper for any open functions they may be having. When that is done the press has not then to depend on anyone for its information, in order to give it a write-up.

Few people in town take in everything for which an admission is charged, simply because they cannot afford to. Neither can the Review and for the very same reason. Therefore we have to depend on others to give us the particulars.

A DISAPPOINTMENT

The Provincial by-election held in Calgary last Thursday created considerable interest throughout the province. This was due largely to the fact that for the first time, the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, the newly organized political party, had an endorsed candidate in the field.

There is no doubt that conditions throughout the world during the past few years have awakened the average man on the street that things are not as they should be; that there is something radically wrong with what we have become accustomed to call "the present system" that much improvement could be brought about by government action and that old ideas should be brought more into tune with present changed conditions.

For these reasons there were many who looked with favor upon the birth of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, hoping that it would inject new thoughts and ideas into the minds, not only of the public but legislators also.

This being the case their first attempt in an appeal to the public for support in the election last Thursday, must have been a disappointment to their erstwhile well-wishers. Not because of the showing made by their candidate but because of the tactics used by her supporters to secure her election.

In the first place the C. C. F.

was strong on getting away from party politics. The Review is heartily in accord with them on that point, at least so far as provincial affairs are concerned. Thinking men and women of all old political parties in the Calgary constituency evidently had the same idea and they got an independent qualified candidate, Mr. Hindley, made it quite plain and clear that if elected he would take his place among the "Independents" in the legislature; that in his best judgment he would endeavor to represent fairly and without prejudice all classes in his constituency and throughout the province—urban, rural U. F. A., C. C. F., Labor, employer and employee—what fairer and more in keeping with the "getting away from politics" idea as annunciated by leaders of the C. C. F.? And yet the C. C. F. endorsed the candidature of another. This makes their stand clear. It really isn't independent men and women they want in politics but rather those who represent "another" political party known by the euphonious title of Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

Nor were their election tactics such as would win the approval of those who might be fed up with election tactics of the past. By introducing federal question and federal members into the campaign they were only befuddling the issue and cluttering up the track with red herring an old piece of political chicanery which has been severely criticized in the past by the fathers of the C. C. F.

The Review is also of the opinion that the over-zealous supporters of the C. C. F. candidate, who in the past have been loudest for "free speech," alienated some of her support by their tactics at opponents' meetings.

For these reasons we have no doubt that many will be disappointed in this embryonic political party.

The Best Kept Secret Of War

Testing Area in England For Tanks Was Completely Isolated

There were strange happenings not eleven, in Suffolk, England, in the spring of 1916.

The few inhabitants of a great area of the countryside were removed either where, all roads leading into that area were blocked, and over a hundred sentries were posted round it. Hundreds of pioneers, detailed from the royal engineers, began to construct a replica of a Flanders battlefield over one and a half miles in width. A no man's land, the German first, support, second and third lines, complete with breast works, wire entanglements, communication trenches, dugouts, machine-gun emplacements and "nets." Shell craters were made in no man's land by exploding mines.

Not a word concerning all this was allowed to appear in the newspapers, for this was a testing ground for an entirely new weapon of warfare, as secretly being constructed at Birmingham, Sheffield, Glasgow, and other places. The complete model was hidden under tarpaulins, were taken by rail under cover of night to the area.

The originator of the tanks and the guiding spirit in all this preliminary work was Major-General Sir Ernest Swinton, who tells the story in his newly-published book entitled "By Writings." Facts reports to be spread to the effect that the machines were war-carriers for British troops in Palestine.

Rumor that gained wide currency, was that a tunnel was being bored through to Germany. Another was that the mysterious machines were snow-plows for the Russian army.

In order to further this belief, Gen. Swinton had "with care—no Petrograd," painted in letters 12 inches high on both sides of the machine.

There were networks to overcome and it was not until towards the close of the year 1917 that the machine was given a chance to prove its real worth. This was during the surprise attack at Cambrai in November, when 400 tanks, advancing in front of our troops, enabled them to penetrate to a depth of from 8,000 to 10,000 yards on a 12,000 yard front with practically no British casualties.

Gen. Swinton was in England when the news arrived, and the joy bells of London city rang out for the first time since the inception of the war. He telegraphed his congratulations to Gen. Bliss, commander of the tank corps. The reply he received: "All ranks thank you. Your show" is now one of the author's most cherished possessions.

Use Trick Advertising

Paris Merchants Found Few People Curious Enough To Investigate

One thing the French are still borrowing liberally from America, is trick advertising. The varying methods met by freak displays in Paris, however, are strikingly exemplified by the case of the habitch trade.

During the late in the habitch trade to have turned wrong way, the proprietor conceived the original idea of covering nine-tenths of his window with black paper, leaving an uncovered strip at the bottom for "Peeping Toms" whose attention he invited with the inscription in white block letters: "Demande de Regarder" (You Are Forbidden To Look).

A roaming reporter who noticed the sign hovered in the neighborhood half an hour, saw 242 men, women and children pass, of which eight stopped, looked and went on, and two, both children, tried to peep, but were not tall enough.

Hoped She Didn't

The "Conte di Savoia" is equipped with the gyrocompasses, which lessen the roll of the ship in rough weather. ## Good Colloquial Usage

Very Hard To Determine Just What It Is

A survey conducted for the national council of teachers of English, in convention at Memphis, has put the seal of approval on the expression "It is me" as well established in "good colloquial usage."

One is scarcely sure what "good colloquial usage" is. Before the days of the tired business man and the perhaps equally tired young woman who transmits the tired business man's dictation to paper, there were good usage and colloquial usage. Perhaps the two have been combined, or merged.

But why should the business man, who though tired is supposed always to put efficiency first, use two letters when he might use but one? In the course of a year the extra time required for writing "It is me" instead of "It is I" is not considerable. And the excess amount of paper consumed every time "me" is written for "I" will amount to a total which we leave to experts and to editors to calculate.

As to the synonymy of "father" and "father" and "half" and "with" which the majority of the surveying group of 220 authors, editors, business men and teachers also approved, surely only he who is determined to waste time will dissent. No conditions as to have been reached regarding the sequence of tenses, so one presumes that that old bag-bag has been sunk without trace.

The basis on which these judgments were reached was that more attention should be paid to the clarification of thought and less to the punctuation of language for expressing it. Functionality was as the usage of words was considered, of course. To make up for the excess of letters in "It is me" as compared with "It is I" the business man and his scribe might adopt the method of Henry James, who also was concerned about the clarification of thought, though not all have thought so. James signed the comma when using adjectives. Persons afford this example: "His was a model character for such a purpose—serious civil ceremonies curious still."

When Is It "Dusk"

Immediately Sun Sets Is Decision Of Ontario Judge

Interpretation of the meaning of the word "dusk" in the statutes requiring the showing of lights on vehicles on the highways has long been a matter of controversy. In a highway accident case at London, Ontario, Judge Weir gave a decision which may establish a precedent settling the issue. He declared that every vehicle should carry its light after sunset.

This interpretation gives rise to a greater definiteness to the law. The word "dusk" has a variable meaning to individuals. To some it means the first fading of light after sunset; others treat it as near darkness.

A Good Guess

The schoolmaster was interesting his class of boys in Red Indians. "What do you call the leaders of the tribes, Smith?" he asked.

"Chiefs, sir."

"Quite correct. And what do we call the first fading of light after sunset?"

Jones hesitated, then said: "Well, I think, sir."

One In Every Home

People In Canada Cannot Get Along Without Newspaper

The extent to which newspapers are read in Canada has been illustrated again in figures announced at the nineteenth annual meeting of the Association of Canadian Advertisers that has been proceeding in Toronto the last few days. It was announced that two and a quarter million copies of newspapers are sold every day in Canada. "This means," it was explained, "that every accessible family in the Dominion is receiving its daily paper."

This is an impressive showing, and indicates that in these present trying years people are loath to give up their daily paper. On this continent at least the daily newspaper is the most widely read of all publications. It is an indispensable part of virtually every family's daily life. — Regina Leader-Post.

Politeness Always Pays

Does Not Cost Anything and Makes People Feel Better

It would be difficult to count up how many clerks have been written about the young man or woman who, having done a good deed for another, is repaid a hundredfold after years have passed. And, cynical as most of us can be at times, we have read and doubt.

The experience of the Welsh girl who has received $3,000 in return for a 10c loan shows how we have been mistaken.

Her politeness, which cost her practically nothing, has paid.

Such repayment does not come to everyone, but even if the hope of help to promote more civility and politeness in our midst we shall be better off. — London Sunday Pictorial.

Test For Left-Handedness

A person of left-handedness whether a person is truly right or left handed has been developed by the optician and engineers. In the test the subject looks through a funnel-shaped device at a cardboard bearing two letters. If he sees an "L" then he is left-eyed and left-handed. If he sees an "R" the opposite is true.

World war widows in Europe have married again at an average rate of 2,000 a year.

Employment in Chile is increasing.

FANCIFUL FABLES

Rations For Hogs

Balanced Meals and Fresh Water Are Most Important

The swine division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture recommends the following points as valuable in hog feeding:

Grind all grain. Fine grinding is recommended, especially for young pigs.

Soak meal mixture between meals; do not use too much water but feed as a relatively thick slop.

While there are many different methods of feeding hogs the use of a good, tight trough is safe and reduces wastage.

Fresh, clean water should be provided between meals.

Pigs should be fed three times daily for at least one or two weeks after weaning; two feeds daily then will be sufficient.

Growing pigs are very fond of and can make excellent use of green feed.

For winter feeding pigs relish a little absorbent material to chew, and will thus keep their mouths busy and regularly. Give the second cut of clover or alfalfa or any well-cured grass or cereal crop.

The desirable effects of feeding a little mangels daily are too well known to need further comment. The important thing is to see that all pigs, except the very young, get some form of vegetable matter regularly.

Things that do not have access to earth should have a box of it in their pens. This is as cheap as it is useful and will be consumed sparingly but regularly. Laying up a supply of sods in the fall provides a good mineral supplement for winter-fed pigs.

Make your feeding count with a balanced ration. Where milk is not available feed tankage as a protein supplement.

Experts Coming From Italy

To Attend World's Grain Exhibition At Regina Next Summer

Twenty scientists and agricultural experts will represent Italy at the 1916 World's Grain Exhibition and Conference at Regina.

Word to this effect has reached the capital of the exhibition, from Dr. Franco Angelini, secretary of the National Syndicate of Technical Agriculture of Italy.

Senator Mazzarini Strampelli will head the technical contingent and at the conference session of the exhibition will lead discussion on hybridization of Italian wheat. Associated with him will be Professor Francesco Tosi, who will give a paper on wheat selection experiments in Italy and Professor Dante Gilberti, member of the Italian parliament will deal with wheat cultivation methods. Other members of the delegation will prepare papers upon some phase of field crop.

Duty Of The Pedestrian

Should Exercise Caution In Order To Avoid Mortality

Others besides motorists should exercise caution on the highways. It is time to be forgotten that motorists have nerves as well as anyone else, and when they do their utmost to drive carefully, and still meet with misfortune which are rather "natural," through the carelessness of others, it is time to offer a plea for their protection.

There should be a check upon bicyclists, especially those who venture at night upon heavily-travelled highways without lights. In rainy weather this hazard is particularly dangerous. Pedestrians are also liable to walk against the traffic. With headlights shining upon wet pavements, it is sometimes difficult to secure a proper view of the road. The pedestrian has the advantage under most circumstances, and he should consider the motorist by travelling on that portion of the highway that is safest for both.

Spelled Eternity

A cautious young man took a sporting old uncle to meet the woman to whom the younger man proposed to propose. He proved to be charming, by longuette.

When they were coming away together the uncle observed thoughtfully to his nephew: "She has no hands and a charming character; I like her other scheme; she's lively without being too fast, but I'd like her stinger is totally inadequate."

A Perfect Organization

Formed On Secret Service Plan To Smuggle Drugs Into England

Facts concerning the drug traffic, revealed in all the papers in London, England, by an experienced customs officer, came as a startling commentary on the many recent cases of drug-taking that have been brought to light.

A new organization for the traffic has been formed, and it is organized on the secret service system.

There is a mysterious inner circle, and its agents are mainly members of ships' crews.

London is the centre of the traffic, and nothing is easier, the officer states, than to smuggle drugs up the Thames.

The days when Penrynville, Popham, was the centre of the drug traffic in this country have gone.

The Penrynville organization was a purely local one, and it is organized on the secret service system, so that the runners, carriers, perhaps it is too small to do not know for whom they are working. They only know their immediate superior.

The only real way to stop the traffic is to paralyze the organization, and that object is farther away than was in the immediate post-war years.

"The organization has been built up—I might almost say perfected—so that it is regularity. The person who smuggles drugs can be smuggled into the country."

The methods are simple. Unless you have good reason to suspect a person you don't constantly crossing to the continent it is hard to pick out a person who is smuggling drugs.

may spend his life running drugs across, but he will be careful to travel by different routes all the time.

There is no need to be large quantities across. What catches a man can pick up on the continent for perhaps £100 in the case of a few hundred walkingstick. Once he has got it here he can advertise it with some harmless product and sell it for anything from £10 to £100.

Mounties To Dimount

Scout Riders Of Plains Disbanding Because Few Motor Cars

There are certain facts which, considering one of a sudden, leave him unable to determine whether to be annoyed or regretful, whether to cry out in bitter protest or seek aid and bewilderment from the law. He only knows that such things ought not to be.

From Winnipeg comes the news that the Mounties of the Northwest Mounted Police are to forsake forever their horses. With the spread of the motor car, and the Canadian prairies and with the development of new methods of law enforcement, automobiles are demanded instead of the horse. So the latter must go.

Thus, before the inevitable march of mechanization there passes from the American continent an element that for some four decades has been a symbol of romance and of heroism. Without its horses the Northwest Mounted police to the level of a high-class police force efficient and progressive.

The giants of the Northwest Mounted will ride no more — save in motors! The scariest-old horses whose glances were Oliver Cromwell fashioned into best-sellers are relics now of a bygone era. They will be put in museums and outmoded motion picture film.

In the words of the modern song writer, one can but pine (though knowing what what fatality: "If it isn't true."

And yet—perhaps one is too ready to see romance only in those things that have been long associated with it. The horse has served the mountie well and shared many a heroic exploit. If the motorist plays a big part in upholding justice, no doubt it, too, will eventually become one of the mechanization—Christian Science Monitor.

Made Two Mistakes

The owner of the cheap watch brought it into the jeweller's shop to see what could be done to it. "The watch is made of course, and is dropping it," he explained.

The jeweller shook his head sadly as he picked up the thing. "It is so crooked that it is a distance of twenty miles in flowing from the source exactly six miles apart as the crow flies."
